FIREMAN battles front of theater building with ladder truck.

Theater History Related; Once Walter Davis Owned

The fire that destroyed what was once Westminster's State Theatre recalls the background of the theater-factory-store-apartment complex known as the Davis Building at the corner of Main and John streets in Westminster.

On the site of an 1883 fire, the building that was the scene of a Sunday morning fire was once the property of Walter H. Davis, for many years a local automobile dealer.

Davis bought the Westminster Methodist Protestant Church building when a merger took place with the Methodist Episcopal Church, provided funds for the remodelling of the church building, and presented it to the citizens of Westminster to be used as a public library. This is the present home of Davis Library on East Main street. Before this project became a reality, modest li-

Commissioners Ask Less Hours

By Christopher H. Bready

The county commissioners asked the county's delegation to Annapolis this week to introduce legislation that could shorten the commissioners' hours, as recommended by the county's Government Study Commission.

At the same time, the three county heads asked the county's four legislators to sponsor legislation that could enable the county to sell more than $4,000,000 in bonds at any one time, and raising the interest level on these bonds to exceed 6 per cent.

State senator Charles H. Smelser (R), the only lawmaker to attend the meeting, said later the commissioners were silent on exactly how much shorter their hours should be.

He added that the delegation would get together sometime soon, and "kick around" the various proposals made by the commissioners.

The other three legislators--senator Goodloe E. Byron, Jr., (D) and delegates Jacob M. Yingling (R) and Richard C. Matthews (R) -- informed the commissioners earlier that they would be unable to attend the meeting. Copies of the commissioners requests will be mailed to the other legislators, the commissioners' office reported.

In seeking action on the report of the Study Commission, the commissioners pointed specifically to the suggestions that they be given greater control of their own scheduled meetings, and that their meeting days be reduced to less than four days a week, as required in the present law.

The 19 members of the Study Commission were unanimous in recommending that the commissioners' hours be shortened, although there was no agreement on just how short.

The members also agreed that there should be a permanent assistant to the commissioners, but the county heads did not ask for this post to be made into law.

At the present time, the county's planning and zoning administrator, George A. Grier, also serves as a part-time assistant to the commissioners.

The commissioners--Robert M. McKinney, Scott S. Bair, Jr., and Paul J. Walsh--also asked that they be allowed to sell more than $4,000,000 in bonds at any one time, as the present law states.

This requirement was first enacted into law last year at the request of the commissioners. The said the hike is sought because there might be additional construction projects which may require action before June, 1971, and costing more

Mayor To Seek Parley On Rates

Westminster Mayor Joseph H. Hahn, Jr., announced this week that he plans to invite the county commissioners to City Hall to hear the city's side in the recent water rate hike controversy.

At his weekly press conference, Hahn said he intends to write a letter this week to the county heads, the result of a promise the city made last week.

At the meeting, for which no date has yet been selected, the city will discuss in detail the reasons and the necessity for the water rate increase, the mayor went on.

"We certainly should be qualified to make a (good) presentation," because of the engineering job done before the rates were raised, Hahn said.

The mayor added that he feels "you can always sit down around a table and have a discussion and come to some sort of conclusion."

At the same time, the mayor launched another salvo in his dispute with the commissioners, claiming that "they wrote the letter before they had gotten the facts."

Hahn was referring to the letter which commissioners Scott S. Bair, Jr., and Paul J. Walsh sent to the Public Service Commission, requesting that agency to determine what the water rates should be for non-city users.

Westminster recently raised its water rates from $7.23 minimum to $12.45 minimum for city users, and double that for non-city residents.

City officials have contended that the raise is necessary to pay off the bonds floated to let the town purchase the water company five years ago.

Opponents of the rate hike have charged that the higher rates for non-residents are discriminatory.

The commissioners' letter to the State agency, plus the outcry from non-residents, prompted the city heads to meet with a PSC official last week in Baltimore.

At that meeting, the city explained briefly its position and expressed a willingness to meet with the commissioners in an effort to settle the dispute.

Hugh H. Hunter, chief engineer of the PSC, in turn informed the city that his agency has no alternative but to intervene and determine what the rates should be for non-city users.

But he added that he hoped this could be done without the necessity for a public hearing. He said he hoped the forthcoming meeting with the commissioners would solve a number of the problems resulting from the rate hike.

Hahn continued to charge a "lack of courtesy" on the part of the commissioners, a phrase he used at the meeting last week.

At the press conference, he claimed, "I know that the county commissioners are totally uninformed as far as (Westminster) financing goes."

The situation would be "much more admirable" if Bair and Walsh had contacted the city before firing off their letter, Hahn said.

Senator's Wife Hurt By Sled

Mrs. Beverly Byron, wife of state senator Goodloe E. Byron, Jr., (D-Carroll-Frederick is reported resting comfortably following a weekend tobogan accident which sent her to the hospital with torn ligaments.

Spokesman in the senator's office said that Mrs. Byron underwent surgery at Sibley Memorial Hospital in Wshgington, D.C., Monday to repair the damaged ligaments.

The senator's wife was visiting on a farm near Hagerstown when the accident occurred, the spokesman said.

The spokesman added that the surgery was completely successful and Mrs. Byron is expected to return home by the weekend.

On TV Listings

As a service to our readers, the Carroll County Times will publish area television program listings for the duration of the Baltimore newspaper strike. Prime Time listings for Baltimore and Washington television stations may be found on page 12 of this issue.

Fire Cause Not Found By Probe

The fire investigator said the cause of the four-alarm State Theater blaze was "undetermined" and "still under investigation" Tuesday, but he said there was "no suspicion of arson."

J. Elwood Kauffman, the fire investigator from the State Fire Marshall's office, said only that the fire started near the stage area of the theater in the rear next to Winter's alley.

A family of six--the Fred Campbell family--was evacuated one by one from a third story window by use of the city's new aerial ladder truck as the fire began building up in the adjacent theater section of the building Sunday morning.

Kauffman noted that the theater and the old sewing factory, both located in the building, were separated by a fire wall. The wall apparently kept the fire from spreading from the theater section to the old sewing factory, where the apartments are located. Several other families in adjacent apartments fled the fire on their own.

Board Probing Insurance Plan

The county School Board has been investigating--and was to have brought up at its Wednesday meeting--a $15 football insurance plan that athletes have been led to believe they must obtain or they will not get to play football.

Furthermore, a brochure on the policy does not state that if the football player is injured, and he has other, private insurance that covers the injury, that the school policy will not cover it. At least one complaining parent, however, found that out after his son was injured.

But the School Board apparently was not aware of the special $15 policy, which was instituted under Earl W. Hersh, supervisor of health and physical education for the county school system.

The School Board had approved a policy which stated that students had to have some kind of insurance, but according to George E. Thomas, superintendent of schools, no policy was specified.

Thomas said it was his view that a student should be allowed to have an insurance policy "other than what the Board of Education makes available."

Thomas added that the parent, in his view, should have "the right of determining whether he should have insurance for his child or not."

The matter was brought to a head by Hobart D. Wolf, a former candidate for county commissioner who received a complaint from an acquaintance.

Wolf investigated, then blasted the practice as "wrong" and deceitful.

Wolf said that first, a parent was led to believe his son must obtain the $15 policy before his son could go out for football and, second, if he was "scrubbed" the first day out, the parent was out $15. There was no rebate, as with many policies that allow a rebate on an early cancellation, Wolf said.

In addition, Wolf was critical of the fact that the policy only paid for injuries not covered by a private policy.

The agent, Paul Dell, and Hersh worked out the arrangement for the policy without consulting the board, Wolf charged.

Countians Feel Newspaper Strike

By Leonard R. Roberts II

The TV commercials say that Sunday isn't Sunday without a certain Baltimore newspaper, but many Carroll countians have tried to make their Sundays real with out-of-town papers during the current Baltimore newspaper strike.

But while the general public is only inconvenienced by the strike of the Web Pressmen's Union against the two dailies, it is the distributors and the non-striking employees who are hit harder in Carroll county.

"Your pay just gets cut off," said Westminster News American distributor Eugene Muse. His thoughts were echoed by Sunpapers distributor Francis Myers who is not opposed to the strike but, he said, "a man has to make a living."

Closer to the strike action are men like Carroll county's Wilson Bechtel, an ad compositor at the Sunpapers.

Food Stamp Benefits Boosted

By Patricia A. Rouzer

Calling it a "major breakthrough," the county welfare director announced this week a liberalized food stamp program that will allow users to get twice as much food for about half what they are now spending.

Lowell T. Haines, the county welfare department director, said that the program came as a result of the Nixon administration's welfare reforms. He added that an explanation of the effects of the new legislation just arrived at his office this week.

He said that the liberalization will be a great help to people with incomes of less than $100 per month.

"A person who has a monthly income of $19.99 will pay 50 cents and get food stamps worth $28 in food," he said.

He said that a person whose monthly income is $65 per month could put up $10 and get $28 worth of food stamps. He added that this category might include many of the county's Social Security recipients.

Haines had previously attacked the program, saying that welfare recipients and very poor people could not afford to participate in the program.

He cited the example of a welfare recipient with two children who could not afford to buy food stamps because, with a $145 per month income, he had to pay $85 rent, leaving $60 for all other necessary expenses. To participate in the program such a family would have had to purchase $54 worth of food stamps.

Under the new program the same family will have to put up $36 and would get more food than they were getting before.

Haines said the new program takes effect in the county February 1.

Haines said that not only has the amount of money required to purchase the stamps been lowered and the amount of food stamps increased, but the scale which determines who is eligible to participate in the program has also been liberalized.

He added that the information on other effects the new legislation will be forthcoming.

"It hasn't eliminated all the problems with the food stamps program, but it is a great step in the right direction. It will get more food out to the people who need it most," he said.

Late last year Haines had blasted the food stamp program, saying it was inadequate for the needs of the low income families. He cited the case of a welfare recipient with two children who had an than the present limit.

In the same vein, the commissioners found the present 6 per cent ceiling on bond interest too prohibitive, and asked that it be lifted so that they may sell bonds easier.

This was prompted after the $2 million sanitary bond issue failed late last year after the lowest interest offered was over 6 per cent.

Also included in the suggestions were several sponsored only by Bair.

He made three motions:

That the State's attorney be prevented from representing governmental agencies other than his own office.

That the State's attorney be prevented from receiving compensation from both sides of a negotiation.

That the county Sanitary Commission law be amended to relieve municipalities of the right to control (for water and sewerage services) those areas within one mile of the city's incorporated limits.

That the State's Attorney not be allowed to represent another county agency is an apparent move to prevent local State's Attorney T. Bryan McIntire, Jr., from continuing to represent the county School Board.

Bair explained the second suggestion to mean, "Since the State's attorney's office expense and the cost of his assistant are borne by the County, he should not represent parties selling (or offering for sale) land to the county or any of its departments or agencies."

The county trionviate also made two other requests:

First they asked, that the final date for acquisition of land for the projected Piney Run Reservoir be extended by two years to July 1, 1972.

Second, they asked that the maximum interest on the county's borrowing power of $200,000 for acquisition of lands for parks and recreation be raised from the present 5 per cent rate.

McKinney and Walsh had mentioned last month they they Intended to ask the county's delegation to introduce legislation on the Study Commission's recommendations and on the bond and interest rate questions.

brary services had been established on the second floor of a building on Main street near the railroad. Mrs. Martha Shaw was the librarian.

Before Mr. Davis' death, he and his wife, Elizabeth, established a foundation to assure financial backing for a library for Westminster, including the payment of salaries, the purchase of books, and operation and maintenance of the library building.

The library grew and expanded, with Mrs. Montgomery Shroyer as the first head librarian under the new organization. As the library "came of age," it separated from Davis Library, Inc., the parent group, and became part of the State system of public libraries in 1958. Since then it has been tax-supported and has not been dependent upon the Davis Library Corporation, although contributions are still made by the Corporation trustees.

The original trustees were: John Baskert, Norman B. Boyle, Carroll L. Crawford, Walter W. Davis, Ralph G. Hoffman, K. Ray Hollinger, Samuel M. Jenness, George K. Mather, and Gerald E. Richter. Davis, Jenness, and Mather have since passed away. Boyle has resigned. The other five trustees, with the addition of Gerald S. Brickett, now serve as trustees of the estate. The trustees were deeded the building at the corner of West Main and John streets as a source of income for the library foundation. Thus, the owners of the building in which the fire occurred on January 11, 1970 are the trustees of Davis Library, Inc. The loss is partially covered by insurance.

As of Monday, it is reported that two of the tenant families in the Davis Building apartments were able to resume living in their quarters. Damage to the east side of the building was largely limited to smoke and water causes.

Stamp

income of $145 per month. Allowing $85 for rent they had $60 left with which to buy food, clothing and other necessities.

Haines said that such a family would be required to put up $54 per month to buy food stamps.

In a year-end look at the food stamp program Haines said that participation in the program during 1969 had risen 110 per cent over the previous year. He pointed out that of the 216 county families using the food stamp program, only 99 or approximately 39 per cent of the county's welfare families used the program.

At that time he urged free food stamps for those on welfare roles or an additional food allowance.

He said that the plan was originally planned to help the country's farmers, not the poor people.

Until now, most of the changes in the program had been token, he said.

NEWS HUNGRY–People lined up early Sunday morning at Main street store to get Sunday papers.

Strike

Local 12, is not actually on strike, but Bechtel is refusing to cross the web pressmen's picket lines because "if you cross a picket line, you stand a chance of being injured."

The compositors' contract expired on December 31 along with those of other typographical workers, but they worked until January 2, Bechtel stated.

Eugene Muse, a Westminster native and first vice-president of the town's volunteer fire department, believes that "not many will continue to buy (the outside) papers after the strike."

An informal Times-Advocate survey of newspaper customers last Sunday at one retail store in Westminster indicated that most customers were requesting the two Washington Sunday papers and The New York Times, all of which were in short supply.

The Sunday editions of the Philadelphia, Harrisburg and York newspapers have been selling at 40 cents per newspaper.

The Westminster agents' prices, however, are low compared to the highly inflated prices for out-of-town papers now being asked in Baltimore City and Baltimore county, where Sunday editions of The New York Times, The Washington Post and the Sunday Star were sold for as high as 82 per paper.

Muse, local News American distributor for approximately fifteen years, received only three complaints Sunday about the prices on the distant-city newspapers. However, Myers, who personally sold papers from his retail store on West Main street, said, in regard to customer price complaints, that "people in this town don't appreciate it when you do them a favor."

The Westminster barracks of the Maryland State Police reported that there were no complaints registered in Carroll county concerning newspaper prices during the strike, as have been reported in Baltimore.

The News American distributor stated that "you don't get complete details out of radio (news coverage) as you get from the paper." Currently, metro area broadcasters and suburban newspapers have expanded their coverage in an attempt to fill the news void created by the pressmen's strike against the Sun family of newspapers and the resultant sympathetic walkout at the Hearst-owned News American.

"The union's asking for too much money," Muse believes, because "they're asking for the Washington scale," which is $45 more than that offered web pressmen in Baltimore.

During strikes and other events which silence the firey roar of the Baltimore hot-type presses, the local news distributors are not reimbursed by the profitable media corporations.

The news-starved public will travel miles in order to buy a Sunday paper replete with the utual plethora of color comic strips, roto gravure magazines and special features, for Eugene Muse said that "a woman came up from Pikesville to get a paper in Westminster."

Fire

Kauffman estimated that about 100 firemen from nine fire companies battled the blaze in 18-degree temperatures, bringing under control about three hours after the first alarm sounded at 3:58 a.m.

The four-alarm fire completely gutted the theater section, collapsing the roof. But Kauffman said the apartments only received some smoke and water damage--"slight," he said.

The firemen were pumping 1,800 gallons of water a minute to control the fire, which sent smoke skyward which could be seen 6 miles away.

Firemen from Westminster, Reese, Pleasant Valley, New Windsor, Manchester, Hampstead, Taneytown, Owings Mills and Pikesville helped fight the fire.

Fire Chief Norman Ogg expressed thanks afterward for the job done by all who helped to fight the blaze or aided the operation.

Seven County Teachers Attend Political Clinic

Seven Carroll county teachers recently attended a "Political Action" clinic of the National Education Association at Harrisburg.

The clinic, which was to encourage teachers' political participation in local, state, and federal governmental levels, spanned three days, January 9-11.

Those attending from Carroll county included: Mrs. Anne Miller, Westminster Junior High School; Mrs. Jean Buchman, Sykesville Middle School; Mrs. Charlotte Collett, Manchester Elementary School; Arthur Griffee, a retired teacher and principal; Richard Hill, Francis Scott Key High School; Joseph Mish, Westminster High School; and Miss Mildred Shipley, Westminster Junior High School.

Mrs. Miller, president of the Carroll County Education Association, addressed the delegates at the Saturday afternoon session on the subject of the building and using of a card file on voter registration.

Following her speech, she led a discussion group on the problem of how to set up a file of registered voters on the local level.

The clinic received a challenge in the keynote address by Ester Wilfong, immediate past president of the Washington Education Association, who said, "Politics makes this country go round, and it's time for teachers to get up off their tenure and enter into partisan politics with a vengence."

The assemblage was also addressed by two members of the House of Representatives--Joseph P. Vigorito (D. Pa.) and Lawrence J. Hogan (R., Md.).

Among the Congressional issues discussed at the clinic was the threat of President Nixon's impending veto of Congressional appropriations for education, which include $4.2 billion for existing federal aid programs.

The participants were informed that this veto could greatly handicap most local school districts. It was suggested at the clinic that local teachers write to their Senators urging them to vote for the HEW-Labor-OEO Appropriations Bill Conference report and to override the President's veto, if necessary.

The clinic was the first of a series of NEA-sponsored conferences on political action which will be conducted throughout the country this year.

Byron To Be In Westminster

State Senator Goodloe E. Byron announces that he will be at the County Office Building, Room 102, in Westminster, between the hours of 10 a.m. and 12 noon on Saturday, January 17, to interview those county residents who are interested in the scholarship program and other state matters, especially those related to the forthcoming 1970 session of the General Assembly.

Children's Art Show At NE Library

Mrs. Mari Nielsen, a graduate of the Utah State University, will exhibit art works for children in the Northeast Branch Library, Hampstead, during the month of January.

Since the exhibit specifically intended for children, Mrs. Nielsen will be available Saturday morning, January 10, to answer any questions concerning her work.

Parents are urged to attend this informal reception with their children. Of course, children are welcome, with or without parents, but they

Mrs. Nielsen has exhibited extensively in New Jersey, Delaware, Pennsylvania and in most local shows including the Flower Mart, the Druid Hill Outdoor Art Festival and the Fells Point Festival.

This is the third in a series of art exhibits to be presented in the branch libraries of the Carroll County Public Library.

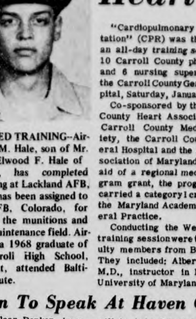

There is no generally accepted form of abbreviation for the state of Idaho.

ON PODIUM–Mrs. Anne Miller, president of the Carroll County Education Association, is shown addressing the clinic sponsored by the National Education Association this past weekend in Harrisburg, Pennsylvania. Seven county educators attended the conference, which was aimed at getting teachers involved in politics and governmental actions.

COMPLETED TRAINING–Airman John M. Hale, son of Mr. and Mrs. Elwood F. Hale of Hampstead, has completed basic training at Lackland AFB, Texas. He has been assigned to Lowry AFB, Colorado, for training in the munitions and weapons maintenance field. Airman Hale, a 1968 graduate of North Carroll High School, Greenmount, attended Baltimore Institute.

Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation

Heart Group In Training

"Cardiopulmonary Resuscitation" (CPR) was the topic of an all-day training session for 10 Carroll County physicians and 6 nursing supervisors at the Carroll County General Hospital, Saturday, January 10.

Co-sponsored by the Carroll County Heart Association, the Carroll County Medical Society, the Carroll County General Hospital and the Heart Association of Maryland, with the aid of a regional medical program grant, the program also carried a category I credit from the Maryland Academy of General Practice.

Conducting the Westminster training session were three faculty members from Baltimore. They included: Albert Antlitz, M.D., instructor in Medicine, University of Maryland Medical School and head, division of Cardiology and Department of Electrocardiography, Mercy Hospital; Elijah Saunders, M.D., Cardiologist, University of Maryland Hospital; and Mrs. Mary Beth Lagoey, R.N., member, American Heart Association Council on Cardiovascular Nursing.

Daniel L. Dever, of the Heart Association of Maryland was state coordinator for the Regional Medical Porgram. Dever is a former Naval instructor who taught CPR, cardiac catheterization and operating room techniques at the U.S. Naval Medical Center in Bethesda.

William B. Dalzay, attorney, was also on hand to discuss the medico-legal aspects of CPR.

Registration was handled by Mrs. Rhoda Bosley, R.N., of the Carroll County Heart Association Board of Directors.

The first part of the program was conducted by Dr. Antlitz. He covered the organizing of hospital CPR programs, the training, American Heart Association standards, and the hospital as a community center of CPR.

Following Dr. Antlitz's emergency measures in CPR, Dr. Saunders covered definitive therapy. Mrs. Lagoey discussed the nurse's role. Dever demonstrated mechanical aids in CPR, and the remainder of the symposium was devoted to actual practice of this life saving technique.

In view of the fact that more than half of all deaths in this country are attributable to some form of heart or circulatory disease, it is the hope of the Heart Association that this comprehensive program of life saving, made possible through the federal grant and the co-sponsors, will help make substantial inroads against sudden death by heart attack in this state and county, the association siad.

Depken To Speak At Haven Center On January 13

Mrs. Colleen Depken, immediate past-president of the Maryland Association for Retarded Children, will be the guest speaker for the January meeting of the general membership of the Carroll County Retarded Children association. The meeting will be held Tuesday, January 13, at 8 p.m., in the Carroll Haven Center, Route 140, Westminster.

Mrs. Depken will speak on the legislative programs about to be intiatiated at the next session of the Maryland state legislation, and how they affect the retardates of our county and state.

She will also elaborate on the progress of the 10 years program of aid to retardates set up by the M.A.R.C.

Rate Dispute

The most serious danger in the water rate dispute is that it will polarize the entire Westminster community.

This process has already begun, and it will gather momentum as the controversy widens. Persons living outside the town limits are developing attitudes which may thwart any chance of cooperation in the future.

County dwellers fiercely resent what they consider to be discriminatory water rates. They believe they are being penalized for resisting annexation, and while they could accept a rate increase of modest proportions, they could accept it only if city residents paid the same bill.

For their part, some Westminster residents believe their neighbors outside the town limits are receiving fair treatment. They do not want to see the out-of-towners 'get a free ride.' They resent any questioning of the town's actions.

These sentiments are obviously not shared by all Westminster residents, no more than the county dwellers all harbor similar feelings of ill will. But enough are sufficiently angry to divide the community, and that can benefit no one.

As government grows and expands, as the community itself becomes more densely populated, the need for cooperation in government at every level increases directly. The city and county must arrive at decisions based on good faith; if this is lacking, progress on many fronts will be stalled.

The county and city must work together on water and sewerage, on police and fire protection. It damages the spirit of cooperation when the city accuses the county of discourtesy, or when the county claims the city is guilty of rate discrimination.

Differences of opinion are bound to develop, but they should be couched in civil terms. This attitude of civility will circumvent the antagonism and personal invective that may easily render the situation impassable.

Commissioners' Hours

The decision by the Carroll county commissioners to request a shortening of their work hours is heartening.

It takes some courage to seek legislative approval for fewer hours; the move will be interpreted by some to mean that the commissioners are slackers. Nothing could be further from the truth.

All three commissioners are ready, willing and able to put in sufficient hours to accomplish the job. Their ineffectiveness has resulted from personality clashes, not from too few hours in the commissioners office.

Carroll county does not need three grown men sitting four full days each week making policy decisions. Under the present law they are given no time for vacation. In fact they are given no time outside the county commissioners' office if the law is interpreted literally.

State's Attorney T. Bryan McIntire has been asked to prosecute the commissioners for leaving the county office building during office hours. He had refused to do so, asserting that the law is unworkable and irrational.

The law must be changed, and the time to do so is now. The commissioners are wasting time under their present schedule, and with time on their hands they become embroiled in needless squabbling.

The ideal set-up would be to have a full-time county administrative assistant to perform many chores that now claim the attention of the commissioners. He would have responsibility for overseeing the various county departments to insure that county policy was being observed.

He would also have authority to convey the policy to the departments. The county commissioners would meet fewer days each week, and their purpose would be to hear citizen complaints and set policy.

We would urge the commissioners to budget for such an employ in forthcoming fiscal years. In doing so, the county would be realizing one of the major findings of the Governmental Study Commission. Their decision to seek shorter working hours, which was also urged by the Governmental Study Commission, is the first step toward the goal.

McIntire Questioned

To The Editor:

As a member of the infamous "Christmas Tree Gang" whose now legendary escapades rated front page coverage in your newspaper several weeks ago, I would appreciate an opportunity to tell your readers some aspects of the incident which were not brought out in the article.

Although the victims of our irresponsible act did not want to prosecute us since we had returned all of the trees and agreed to pay any damages, the State's Attorney decided that he would like a crack at us.

Therefore, under the advice of the Maryland State Police, we went to court without a lawyer in the hopes that the court would realize the act was merely a prank, and finding us sincere in paying for all damages, fail to officially blemish our records.

After an eloquent speach by the State's Attorney, in which he inferred that we were ultimately responsible for the national crime wave, we considered ourselves lucky to get off with the criminal record that we now have.

The State's Attorney said that we would be "examples"; I, for one, question this approach to justice.

Another concern that is foremost in my mind is your willingness as a publication to put the College in a bad light at every available opportunity.

The paper seems to delight in picturing the College as a home for wayward young people as well as a hippy haven. Admittedly prejudiced, I feel that Western Maryland College is one of the finest colleges in America, and to a large degree this is a result of responsible action by the overwhelming majority of the college community, myself usually included.

It seems strange that there was no other news in Carroll county that warranted front page coverage over a relatively unimportant misdemeanor, except for the fact that it was done by the collegians whom the State's Attorney and your paper seem particularly eager to condemn.

Students Commended

I believe that basically the youth of today want to make a positive contribution to their society and are doing so. I would like to relate some experiences that the young people at the Sykesville School are involved in. These students are aware of the problems of others and are attempting to help in several different ways.

Through the leadership of the Student Council, the middle school youngsters are supporting, on their own, a foster child in Cavite, Southeast of Manila. Once a month each homeroom makes a collection to raise the money.

At Thanksgiving the students, through their homerooms, collected food for needy families. Also, the Student Council held a dance and the admission was a can of food. Money raised was used to buy hams.

The elementary classes were involved and did an outstanding job of contributing food. The pupils, both elementary and middle, collected enough for eight large boxes of food.

Prior to Christmas the pupils started a project to bring in gifts for the patients at Springfield Hospital. Again, all the grades participated. Eight large boxes (probably 400-500 gifts) were collected.

In each the pupils did the work and followed through completely. They did an outstanding job.

I think the parents and the community should be especially proud of these young people.

Youth Speaks Out

To The Editor:

It is time someone spoke out in defense of the dissatisfied generation!

Although I believe that "our" endless quest for peace is a futile quest, I feel it is a necessity to try.

My generation, a generation looking for the ideals for which America stands, must in our own way seek out this America. Not the America of Vietnams, racisms, and needless bloodshed, but of peace, brotherhood and plain love.

We are trying to rediscover and refashion our world in a way of peace. Many of us feel we must, whether it is through a peace march in the nation's capital or draft resistance, promote our world of peace.

And whether it is for a black brother or a white brother I feel it is my obligation to assist any brother in his fight for equality!

Who can say that ours is an "impossible dream"? I know I cannot; I can only hope and pray that it isn't.

However, I feel that if the rulers of the mighty powers of the world continue on their present course, the only peace that will prvail will be the peace of total destruction.

Maybe our high ideals of LOVE, PEACE and BROTHERHOOD aren't so bad as some "people" believe!?

Peace brother,

Gun Legislation

To The Editor:

I am writing to join the millions of Americans fighting bills on Gun legislation. I feel these bills are a waste of valuable time and money. What do our Congressman hope to accomplish with these bills? Why aren't the laws that we had in the past sufficent? We have no need for new laws, just enforcement of the old ones. There are over 50 Million licensed hunters and fisherman both men and women in the United States. I hope that our Congressman realize that hunting license, guns and ammunition mean money for both State and Federal Governments.

32 years ago hunters and the shooting industry asked to be taxed, yes they asked to be taxed. This tax now is 11% on all new shooting arms and ammuniton. This has provided more than 300 million dollars for wildlife management and conservation.

Hunters pour over 1,5 Billion dollars into the general economy each year and spend over 100 million dollars a year developing wildlife habitat on private lands.

Hunters do more for Conservation than the rest of the population of the United States combined.

Hunters and fisherman anti up 140,000,000 a year for support of State fish and game departments in all 50 states. Most of these hunter and fisherman are voters and they don't forget.

This I don't understand the government of the United States wants gun legislation, what and who are they afraid of, I am sure it is not the hunter.

I know a boy who was 18 years old went into the Army, served 11 months and 27 days in Vietnam, Now he is home and out of the service. He is 20 years old. He can't buy a gun or ammunition to go hunting with because he is not 21. But he was old enough to use an M-16 the Government gave him to kill with in Vietnam. What does gun legislation have to say about this? How do you think this boy will vote when he is 21 or any other boy who has fought for his Country.

Learning Languages

To The Editor:

One thing that has really bothered me in my adult life is my inability to speak a foreign language fluently.

The opportunity to learn French while attending high school in Carroll County slipped from my grasp when the teacher retired and no replacement was provided. To my knowledge, a foreign language was not offered at Elmer Wolfe High School for the remaining days of its existance.

I was very disappointed then and regret it now.

Since high school I have had two years of French, which I use infrequently but as much as possible.

In the past ten years I have met and talked with people from almost every foreign country. As a soccer enthusiast and player I have been teammate to Norwegian, Dutch, English, German, Hungarian, Italian, French, Irish, Turkish, Yemenese, Canadian and Spanish players--to name a few nationalities--and opponent of Russian, Ukranian, Polish, Mexican, Indian and Finnish players. As a coach, I can include Belgium, Thailand, Brazil, Kores, Japan, Venezuela, Equador, Panama, Austria, Peru and the most fantastic young player of them all, Farzin Azapour from Iran.

While doing color photography in New York I worked with men from Portugal, Nigeria, East Africa and Puerto Rico.

As a taxicab driver the list goes on and on, with most of the world community represented by merchant seamen.

The irony is that most of these foreign visitors and immigrants have a good command of English and proudly display their Americanized slang.

Without exception, the foreign visitor is keenly interested in our country and us. They want to know all about us as people. We have their respect and admiration.

Aside from those areas of advanced socio-economic growth, like Bethesda-Chevy Chase, language study on the

CARROLL COUNTY DIARY

Vice President Agnew was right, of course, when he excoriated the press for biased reporting. National television is an East Coast phenomenon produced largely in New York city. Its commentators are inclined to a more urban, urbane and liberal viewpoint than is common in areas west of the Mississippi river. When these analysts dissect the news they are reflecting East Coast values; they are biased by their whole upbringing and outlook.

Their selection of what is important in the days' events is bound to reflect this bias. They will focus attention on Vietnam war atrocities because they are convinced that the war is undesirable, and because atrocities testify to the guilt of the United States in pursuing the war. Newspapers along the East Coast take a similar approach to the news.

The selection of what is news gets down to the question of human values. Here no one can be unbiased. A man of conservative outlook will resent the amount of space alloted race riots. He may not believe that race riots are desirable or serve any useful purpose in American life. He may believe that they represent only a tiny segment of the sentiments of the American people.

Conversely, a liberal finds race riots as symptomatic of what is wrong with the country. He believes that the riots should be reported in detail because here, at last, is an instance of the aggrieved minority demanding attention. His view of the world is that this particular minority deserves considerable attention. Their case should be brought forcefully to the public eye. Only in this way can the American majority be made to face the issue.

Here in Westminster there is an apt illustration of the point I am making. It deals with the recent action of the Westminster City Council in boosting water rates to double and triple their former levels. A considerable number of citizens living outside the town limits are furious. They applaud stories which dramatize their grievances. They seek out news that would seem to strengthen their claims of injustice.

Conversely, they are impatient with stories which give the opposing viewpoint. This newspaper printed a statement by Mayor Joseph H. Hahn which he issued to explain and elicit support for the city's position. Not a few readers criticized the newspaper for allowing its columns to be exploited by partisans of an unworthy cause. They disagreed strenuously with the statement, and felt that it amounted to "pure political propaganda."

"Why do you print such nonsense," we were asked. The answer is obvious. Suppose Vice President Agnew had issued a statement asking support for the Vietnam war. If we omitted it, Vice President Agnew would blast us for biased news reporting. He would say that we focus on critics of the administration and deny or severely reduce the space given to the administration. And he would be correct.

I believe that it is probably accurate to say that Mayor Hahn and the Westminster City Council are not happy about the amount of space given to critics of the water rate hike. They would be super-human if they felt that critical stories, published day in and day out, were giving them a fair shake. They would resent such stories and might well feel that the newspaper was sensationalizing the news to sell newspapers.

There is no way out of this bind. It began when the first newspaper started printing facts and it will continue forever. What is more interesting and valid, I believe, is the issue: should the press take at face value the statements of public figures in a controversy when expert reporting has established that they are lying? Should newspapers give prominent display to patently irresponsible charges; should they lend themselves to selfseeking, self-inflation by ambitious or obtuse men.

I do not regard the water dispute as exemplary of this issue. Mayor Hahn's statement is the product of an honest man presenting what he believes to be the truth. The point I believe is worth exploring is the clash between the ultimate journalistic goal of getting at the truth and the kneejerk convention of giving equal weight to 'both sides of the story', however false one side may be, and letting the reader fend for himself.

Guest Comment

Lerner On Phone Dispute

It is the strength of our democratic republic that we have a free press available to all persons and graphs to express their views. I can even hail through not too heartily on my part the comments in Steve Bennett's Diary for setting the stage for this exchange between Hobarth Wolf and myself.

Contrary to the self-imposed limits of the FDCC, I had not limited my remarks and their applications only to the residents of the Sykesville-Eldersburg area. The proposed telephone rates and coverage also relate to the Westminster area and all of Carroll county. For that matter I was pleased to have persons from Westminster-Finksburg attend our meeting and participate in the question and answer period. As I understand it, and this is secondhand information, this was not the case at the FDCC meeting.

Mr. Wolf asks the Carroll County Times to publish his commentary so that the people" in the South Carroll area will have 'all' the facts in the case", I submit a concerned response to the "facts" enumerated by Mr. Wolf with the earnest conviction that my statements are accurately presented and free of error.

Please note that Mr. Wolf forced the comparison between Mr. Heinehamp and myself. My reply is in no way intended to belittle Mr. Heinehamp's efforts.

Regarding my acceptance by the PSC as an Intervenor - first I had written prior to the December 1st hearing requesting that I be given the chance to testify and present evidence. I appeared formally and presented myself before the Commission. I told Mr. Doub that I had testified on the telephone issue before two previous PSC Chairman and that my interest and involvement went back over a period of seven years. I was accepted by the Commission. I presume that you or anyone else could have done the same. And if you did, you could have spent five interesting days with some evening hours. As far as I know, I was the only person from Carroll county attending all public sessions. There was no one from the FDCC who attended any hearings beyond December 17. Surely among your five or ten members you could have expressed your real interest by being there.

I stated at the PSC hearing on December 1 that I will represent only myself. I could not at that time presume to represent others unless I had express permission or consent, though I had good reason to assume that my feelings were shared by most of the other 787 subscribers.

Mrs. Wolf stated that the Chairman of the Public Service Commission asked Mr. William Heinehamp to work with the C & P representatives to draw a compromise plan for the South Carroll area. This is not what I heard, Mr. Wolf. The Chairman of the PSC asked Mr. Heinehamp to work with other people in his area to obtain a consensus of views. The Chairman asked the C & P representatives to talk to Mr. Heinehamp, Mr. Lerner, and Mr. Scholz. The FDCC people met privately with the phone company on the following Saturday and took it upon themselves to draw up that so-called compromise plan and presented it before their public meeting of December 10. This compromise plan is not Plan A referred to later. This is the great tragedy of the FDCC operation. They effectively destroyed the 787 metro service we presently have. People at my meeting were nearly unanimous with one exception to maintain the present 787 metro service. The either-or approach presented before the FDCC meeting provided for either compromise plan at the $8.50 rate or 787 service at the $26.50 rate (which was now reduced from $37.00). The Commission was then told that the people wanted the compromise plan. The public, as I see it, selected the compromise plan in preference of paying $26.50. This is the effect of the FDCC crunch and the destructive effects of its survey mask sheets that the public completed for them. You tied your own knot. The proposals of the FDCC provided for two-way calling to Baltimore city.

Prior to this I had discussed my preference not to meet privately with Mr. Muntzing, the attorney for the phone company, but asked him to meet with the people in the area in an open and public forum to which he agreed. These arrangements were made on the day of the public hearing.

Mr. Wolf stated that Mr. Heinehamp was a logical choice... for the South Carroll area." He said that Mr. Heinehamp represents more than 4000 people who are retired Baltimore city employees who reside mostly I presume in Baltimore city and county, some in Canada and Mexico. What does that mean for people living in Carroll county? Logical, no illogical! Authority, if he had the authority or assumed that authority after a vote of his membership on this issue, does not give him the mantle to speak as a voice for the Freedom district.

Mr. Wolf called on the evening of Friday December 5 asking that I call off my meeting. Mr. Wolf asked that I help FDCC in their studies and participate in their meeting. I state the following very carefully.

Mr. Wolf stated that it is possible that there may be persons who may act violently at my meeting. Mr. Wolf told me how difficult it was to get insurance against violence. I was aghast and taking his words inwardly. It is a sad commentary in these days to make such intimations. I think we have heard too much of violence and the American public has had enough of it. I naturally declined Mr. Wolf's request that I suspend my meeting and participate in his. Incredible, you bet it is.

You stated that at our meeting of December 15, I commenced in my opening remarks some political attacks. Let me clear the record. I said the following in a prepared statement: "I hope we can measure up to your expectations to present a factual report on your telephone service in an orderly manner. I can not help but note that if we had as many people come out on school budget meetings we would have one of the better educational systems in the State. Our values are out of proportion at times. We hope your questions tonight are sharp and clear and the responses to them are forthright."

I made welcoming remarks by recognizing the presence of the Press. "I thanked the representatives of the News-American, The Baltimore Sun, The Carroll County Times", and reporters and cameramen from WJZ TV news for coming. In jest, I said that the press and the TV men would be perfectly safe tonight from Mr. Agnew."

In regard to the FDCC, I stated: "this meeting is not a continuation of the one held down the road last Wednesday. This meeting is an open discussion to arrive at a singular expression of the views of the community. We may not be totally successful but that is our objective and goal. We will try. The issues are for the entire community and not one for the self-seeking purposes of a few. Let me explain that the Public Service Commission directed Mr. Muntzing to meet with me and this meeting is an outgrowth of that action."

No modesty on my part, I believe we held and conducted a fine meeting. I was grateful for the kind remark of Mr. Paul Kep of the phone company in stating that this meeting was appreciated because it was orderly.

The concensus of the meeting as recorded on the cards returned to us indicated an acceptance of a reasonable increase in the telephone rates. Persons who expressed themselves on the subject did not oppose a higher rate for the company but they said that the

On The Trail
In Carroll County

By G.P. Gunther

Looks as if its going to be a long snowy winter, so why not consider feeding the wildlife?

Put out a bird feeder. You can buy one in just about any store. Get a bag of mixed feed for around 79 cents and you can feed a lot of birds.

It is also possible to get a ball of suet mixed with bird seed and equiped with a string to hang the ball to a tree limb.. suet is beef fat uncooked-in case you didn't know.

If you would like to make it a bit easier for the other game it would be a kind thing to do if you scattered a little shelled corn on top of the snow crust.

A bag of commercial dogfeed costs very little. If you wanted to do it you could put some of this out for the meateaters among the wild game. There is something about doing this that causes a person to feel better all over than anyplace else.

If you are a no trespass sign landowner you should feed your stock because in effect that is what your wild game is. If you are a visiting hunter or a guest hunter it would be most appreciative of you to go back where you hunt and feed the ones you let get away. Everyone will have a better opinion of you--even you.

There is much satisfaction in helping out in bad times. Snow time is bad time no matter what Santa says. Don't believe the lyrics in all those songs either. Jingle bell time ain't always a "swell time". It can be shovel time and dig time and other heavy duty time too.

While we are talking about feeding animals, do not overlook that faithful old "huntin' dawg of youn". See that he has a goodly amount of beeding in his kennel and see to it that his feed portions are upped somewhat.

When the cold winds howl around his house he needs more calories to help maintain body temperature at a comfortable level.

Another good thing to bear in mind is that his water pan will freeze a short time after it is filled. Snow eating is not desirable, even for a dog. That dry feed makes a dog thirsty. Keep the water supply unfrozen. You will sleep better.

If you go out to stroll in the fresh new snow, take your dog along. You will notice how much he too likes to play in the soft, light, cold stuff. He will tear all around and plow through the drifts and enjoy the whole bit was much as you do. He will push his nose through it an allow. It to pile up on his snout. You thought I would say: "snoot" didn't you? I nearly did-did I not nearly?

Don't forget now: feed that game,

But don't attempt to make it tame.

The purpose is to keep it here

So we may hunt another year.

Seeds and suet, corn and such

I assure you won't cost much.

Get out there and do your stuff

When the weather gets a little rough.

I am sure you will find this a lot more fun

Than other things that you have done.

I just had to do that rhyme. I couldn't help myself. . Impulse you know. Besides, I'm for this feeding bit because nobody has proven to my satisfaction that I may not return to this earth, after my passing, as a frog or a rabbit or some other animal-maybe even a bird.

I figure if everyone helps feed the wildlife they may be sort of buying insurance of a type. . .for me and for themselves.

I can't say I have recognized any animals that I have seen as old friends. However, there are some strong resemblances that bother me occasionally when I have time to meditate. Have you ever given any thought to this? How about that Boxer dog next door? Who does he resemble? See what I mean?

Reincarnation is what the educated ones call it and they sort of "pooh-pooh" the idea. But they can't prove to anyone that the old crow outside cawing his big mouth off is not old uncle so and so any more than anyone can prove it is old uncle so and so.

Weigh these thoughts. They are meditation material. There are many secrets locked in mother nature's store of things unknown.

elementary level is virtually non-existant. The study of foreign languages is best suited for grade-school level because the strange phonetic sounds required can be physically adopted by the vocal cords prior to their maturity.

Sweden requires students to take English from grade four through grade seven--and remember, there English is a foreign language.

Perhaps it is because we are geographical isolationists that we ignore the languages of the world. And maybe it is because of the proximity of neighboring countries in other continents that language study is important to them. It is very odd that most countries, especially in Europe and South America, require the study of English in primary school.

The main reason why languages are not offered students on the elementary level here is because time to include it in the schedule is not available.

This problem could be solved by offering a concentrated foreign language elective (voluntary) course on Saturday mornings in Eldersburg and Westminster, where modern language equipment will be available. An alternative is to offer courses during the summer recess.

It would be a strange experience to hear 10 year-old students in Carroll County conversing in Spanish, French, Garman and Japanese.

Learning a foreign language can be the unique stepping stone to a better understanding of the world and our role it. it.

Mrs. Donald Lee Ritter

Miss Alice Louise Harbaugh, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Richard W. Harbaugh, Walkersville, recently became the bride of Donald Lee Ritter, son of Mr. and Mrs. Nicholas Ritter, also of Walkersville, at Grace Rocky Hill Lutheran Church.

The Rev. Eugene Gardner officiated in the double ring ceremony. Mrs. Catherine Zimmerman, organist, played traditional wedding music, and Miss Eleanor Hahn was soloist.

Given in marriage by her father, the bride wore a ruffled gown of French designed scalloped chantilace, with Sabrina neckline and long sleeves pointed at the wrists. The gown featured a chapel train accented with large peau bow at waistline. Her elbow length veil of bouffant English illusion fell from a crown of pearls with lace inserts. She carried a Bible topped with a white orchid corsage.

Miss Bonnie Sue Eyler, Walkersville, was maid of honor for her friend. Bridesmaids' were Mrs. Mary Funk, Gwinn, Michigan, sister of the bride; Miss Connie Marie Weddle, LeGore; Miss Shirley Louise Hoffmaster and Miss Rosemary Yvonne Fauver, both of Woodsboro. Miss Beverly Sue Bentz, Emmitsburg, cousin of the bride, was flower girl.

The maid of honor wore a floor length gown of sky blue with a navy blue velvet top. The bridesmaids' floor length gowns were of lime green, each with its own style of embroidering and trains. Each of the attendants wore a veil matching her gown and carried a colonial bouquet of yellow chrysanthemums. The flower girl wore a white silk taffeta length dress covered with white embroidery at the top. She carried a colonial basket of yellow pom-poms and daisies.

Alan Bradley Spahr, Walkersville, was best man. Ushers were Ruby Lawrence Ritter, brother of the bridegroom, Ronald Lee Green and Steven Monroe Blank both of Walkersville, and Ray Welton Brewer, Keymar, cousin of the bride. Ryan Lee Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Lee Zimmerman, son of Mr. and Mrs. Irvin Zimmerman, was ring bearer. Bryan Eugene Bentz, Emmitsburg, cousin of the bride, was acolyte.

Following the ceremony, a reception was held at the Woodsboro Fire Hall.

For her daughter's wedding, Mrs. Harbaugh wore a white wool knit dress with black accessories and a double cream colored carnation corsage.

After a short wedding trip, the newlyweds are residing at the home of the bride's parents.

The bride is a 1969 graduate of Walkersville High School and is employed by S. W. Barrick and Sons, Inc., Woodsboro.

The bridegroom, also a 1969 graduate of Walkersville High School, is employed by Glade Home Improvement, Walkersville.

The bride was honored with three surprise showers, one given by her friends at the Woodsboro Fire Hall, another by her sister-in-law, Miss Nancy Ritter, and another by her sister, Mrs. Mary Funk.

ENGAGED–Mr. and Mrs. Willard C. Uhler, Hampstead, have announced the engagement of their daughter, Jeanne Louise, to Elvio F. Binetti, son of Mr. and Mrs. Omero Binetti, Dundalk. Miss Uhler is a graduate of the University of Maryland, Division of Practical Nursing, and is on the nursing staff of Carroll County General Hospital, Westminster. Binetti is a graduate of the University of Baltimore and is an assistant warehouse manager for Smith-Corona Marchant Corp. in Chicago, Illinois. A May wedding is planned.

Drive Against Rubella On Move

The write-in campaign to urge Presidential support for increased Federal funds for rubella vaccine is gaining momentum in Maryland and elsewhere in the nation, according to Dr. Neil Solomon, Secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Dr. Solomon is urging mothers and potential mothers to write and telegraph President Nixon to express their desires that more Federal funds be appropriated for vaccine to immunize enough children to prevent a rubella (German measles) epidemic predicted by many health experts to occur as early as the spring of this year.

Rubella can cause death and deformities of the child if a woman contracts the disease during the early months of pregnancy. Rubella babies may be born blind, deaf, with heart defects, or mentally retarded.

We call Columbia The Gem of Encyclopedias and we can prove it at no risk to you!

Buy Volume One, unless you agree that the Columbia is all that we say it is, we'll happily refund the full purchase price.

The Illustrated COLUMBIA Encyclopedia

The set of a lifetime . . . the only encyclopedia your child will ever need . . . the one you'll read to him until he can read it himself . . . by which time he'll have acquired the winning habit of a lifetime . . . The habit of looking it up.

● 22 volumes
Surely you've seen or heard of the wonderful 1-volume Columbia Encyclopedia. LIFE calls it the best 1-volume encyclopedia. Schools and libraries consider it a must. Well, now a team of scholars have made a good thing even better. 22 times better, to be exact.

● Extravagantly illustrated
You'll find the Columbia exciting to use. The entire 22-volume set is sprinkled with significant illustrations that add a whole dimension to the text. Approximately 7000 of them, about 1000 in full color.

● Information-packed
Pick a topic! You're bound to find it in the Columbia. People. Places. Philosophies. Yesterday's history. Tomorrow's science. All authentic, all expressed in a streamlined, no-nonsense manner. Absorbing reading in every volume for both you and your children.

● Created right on a college campus
The entire text of the Columbia Encyclopedia was created right on a college campus. And what better classroom could a reference work have? Your information will be respected in any discussion. Your children will go to school well-prepared and well-informed.

● Yearbook Service keeps your set current
The outstanding Columbia Yearbook Service will be available to you at special rates. These annual supplements cover the events of the year thoroughly in every category — world events, politics, sports, the arts . . .

The total price of the set is a tiny fraction of what you expect to pay and the purchase plan makes it even more spectacular.

should be the publicized increase of about 9% not a 300% or a 200% increase. Almost all persons wanted to maintain the present 787 metropolitan service at a reasonable rate, these views were reported to the PSC.

At the conclusion of our meeting, Mr. Munting of the phone company asked that Mrs. Day and I meet with representatives of the PDCC. On the following evening Tuesday, December 16, I met with Mr. Heir hamp and Mr. John Holthouse at the home of Mrs. Jean Day. Let me say I stood firm and fast against the so-called compromise plan because it was so much less than other communities were getting for the same rate of $8.50. The four of us hammered out on agreement which we called Plan A and Plan B. Under Plan A, in addition to Baltimore city for $8.50 we can call (if the Plan is accepted by the PSC) Towson, Cockeysville, Arbutus, Elkridge, Prospect, and Glen Burnie. Plan B is the entire Baltimore Metropolitan Exchange Area at $17.50 (a figure which was not known at that point in time). I urged my fellow conferees to support Plan B with vigor and seek a fairer rate for Metro service.

Mr. Wolf completely omits any reference to these Plans. Mr. Wolf says that I have not issued any positive alternative plans, Nonsense! Mr. Wolf.

I have not issued any statements critical of thse Plans. As of the moment the 787 rate would rise to $19.50 which is about mid-way between the rates for the perameter areas around Baltimore ranging from $14.50 to $20.50 I know we could have done better.

I have spend far too much time and effort in rebuting Mr. Wolf and his calculated calumnies. And I have not covered them all.

Yes, I have some positive contributions. Louis Scholz and I in those lonely earlier days fought for and got the 787 for the Freedom district. Lou Scholz and I succeeded in cutting mileage rates. Just six years ago we did not have dial service in the Freedom area. We got the phone company to commit themselves to an earlier installation of dial. I obtained lower mileage rates for the residents of upper Mineral Hill road, Erin road and Emerald Drive and refunds for a year's overcharge in rates. I arranged for the outdoor phone on Mineral Hill road, I also got a phone installed on Route 97 which was subsequently removed because of vandalism. At the present hearing the phone company agreed to spell out in their tariff provision exclusions from their proposed 25 cent operator assistance charge. If approved by the PSC, no such charges would be placed against the blind, the mentally retarded, the aged persons with Parkinson's disease, and arthristic conditions etc. The phone company will work out the administrative procedures.

100 years ago, Vicksburg, Miss., was on the Mississippi River----Now, the river is 3 miles away.

THE CARROLL COUNTY TIMES JANUARY 15, 1970 PAGE 13A

There is so much more to say. Ask why the attorneys for the incorporporated towns did not appear to protect the interests of their community? Know that Baltimore is paying a nominal increase and that the perimeter areas and the rural counties are paying the brunt of the increase in telephone rates. This was so testified by Edward McClean, the chief rate expert of the PSC.

It's surprising how many people feel that observing the Sabbath means wearing their best clothes. Trouble with this is--the Lord looks on the inside, not at the clothes.

Forsyth Replaces Crump

The Sykesville mayor and Town Council this week named William Henry Forsyth, a former councilman, to fill the vacancy created by the resignation of Councilman G. Norman Crump.

Forsyth was sworn in at a meeting of the council Monday night. At that meeting, the council also received the resignation of William Ray McElroy, the assistant police officer to Officer Millard F. Cooper.

Forsyth was named by the council because he received the next highest vote count in last May's election. The practice of naming the losing candidate with the highest vote is an old one in the town.

Forsyth had served on the Town Council for years before last May's defeat. His appointment Monday night means he will fill out Crump's term. Crump resigned recently because his company is transferring him to Minnesota.

The council accepted McElroy's resignation, effective January 15. He resigned for personal reasons, a town spokesman said.

The council voted to advertise for a night watchman until a permanent policeman to replace McElroy can be found.

This leaves the town without fulltime night policing. Cooper also acts as head of public works for the time, taking charge of snow removal and garbage collections, among other chores, which leaves him little time other chores except regular police patrol.

Jaycee Yule Awards Presented

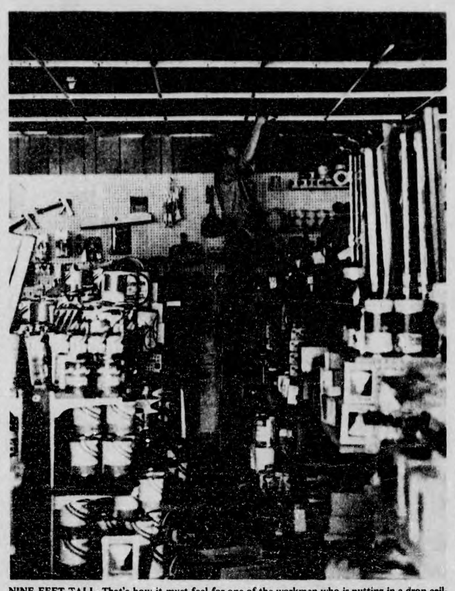

The winners of the recent Freedom Jaycees Christmas Lighting Project were awarded their plaques at the meeting of the Jaycees on January 7 at the Eldersburg Community Center.

The winners of the three categories were: "Most Religious," Kenneth Dotson, Oakland road; "Most Original," James Frank, Oakland road; and "Most Outstanding," Lawrence Rice, Country Fair lane.

Honorable mentions were also presented to E. A. Townsend, Main street, Sykesville; H. E. Cantow, Country Fair lane; and J. Henderson, Route 32, Eldersburg.

The awards were presented at the regular membership meeting of the Jaycees.

At that meeting, it was announced that the Freedom Jaycees are planning to have another membership drive. The organization is open to all men between 21 and 35 years of age.

NINE FEET TALL--That's how it must feel for one of the workmen who is putting in a drop ceiling at the hardware store on Liberty road that has been recently purchased by George Mezerdash. The workman is standing atop a pair of short stilts, which allow him the mobility to wander around the cluttered store. The alterations will be completed in a few weeks, and the store will have a grand opening under a new name soon.

George To Open Hardware Store Near Supermarket

The name George will soon become more synonymous with the Eldersburg region of the county.

George H. Mezendash, who owns George's Super Thrift on Liberty road, has recently purchased the Eldersburg Lumber and Building Supplies Company.

Now undergoing $7,000 worth of interior alterations, the store will have a grand re-opening in a few weeks under its new name, George's Super Hardware.

The store's only previous owner, William Meyer, said this week he was hanging up the nuts and bolts "to go fishing."

Located on Liberty road, near Marvin avenue, across the road from the food store, the hardware store cost Mezerdash about $32,000 for the stock and the business. Meyer retains the land and the building. But Mezerdash plans to buy them next year.

"The main reason I bought the company was for the land," he said. In explanation, he noted he owns the adjoining land to the west of the property.

Land values are skyrocketing on that stretch of road, and he said he considered the chance to buy the land and the business as a good one.

He plans sometime in the future to sell the land, with the stipulation that the next buyer build a new store on the premises to his specifications and he will continue to own it.

Right now, the store is not closed. But, from all appearances, it might as well be. Stock is piled in the aisles.

Men wander around on stilts, putting up the new interior ceiling. At the same time, new shelves have been constructed, as well as a partition across the back portion of the store.

These will be finished in a few weeks, and, as Meyer put it, "will completely change the outlook of the place."

This is the first time Mezerdash has ventured outside the grocery business, he said. For the past 2 1/2 years, he has had his large food store on Liberty road, and before that a smaller one up the road for 4 years.

Ownership and management are two different things, though. He plans to retain the store's previous manager, Roland C. Lauderbach, on a part-time basis, and turn the entire reigns over to a friend, Stan Jones, a former banker from Baltimore.

"He's always wanted to get into the hardware business," Mezerdash said. "And I'm going to set him up."

The building was originally built by Meyer in 1961, on land which he purchased in 1958.

The purchase this month came almost by accident, Mezerdash recalled. "It had been up for sale for 3 or 4 months, and he (Meyer) asked me accidentally if I wanted to buy it. I said yes."

Mathias Selects Mt. Airy Youth

Maryland Senator Charles McC. Mathias (R) has nominated a Mt. Airy youth to compete for one of two vacancies at the U.S. Naval Academy, Annapolis, his office has reported.

Michael Lawson Schlotterback, 2 Beck drive, was one of 20 Maryland youths Mathias nominated for the positions at the military academy.

At the same time, the Senator also nominated 20 other state students for two vacancies at the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado, and 10 for a position at the U. S. Military Academy, West Point, New York.

The nominees were chosen by Senator Mathias on the basis of the results of the College Board and Civil Service examinations, physical examinations, and the recommendation of the Senator's nonpartisan Academy Review Board. The Board, composed of prominent Maryland citizens, interviewed over 200 applicants.

Public Water Flow Held Up By Tests

By Christopher H. Breedy

Residents of Freedom District will not be getting water through the area's new water system until at least the first week in February, the chief engineer for the project said this week.

Leonard Glass, engineer with Matz, Childs and Associates, Baltimore, announced that further tests must be run on the system before the public will be able to receive water.

He had promised the county Sanitary Commission in December that the target date for the operation of the system would be January 15. Minor delays in construction are the causes for the delay, he said.

The original target date for the completion of the system had been January 3. But late delivery of some pipes, fittings, conirol valves, and other construction items has set back the project completion by at least one month.

Earl R. Fox, administrator of the Sanitary Commission, last week said the target date was January 15. He said he had not heard from Glass about the postponed date, but added, "He's the engineer."

"The engineers had estimated it would be around the 15th, and that's the only information I had," Fox said.

Glass said this week that water soon will be pumped into the new water storage tank, to check for leaks and the performance of the system.

After the entire system appears to be in working order, he added, the water must be checked by the state and county health departments before residents can start turning on their taps.

Leo V. Cheney, chief sanitarian for the county Health Department, said that this inspection would be a field test, checking for chlorine and phosphate content.

He said this week that the Sanitary Commission has informed him that the date for this inspection has been tentatively set for January 19.

Informed of Glass' new target date, the sanitarian said the engineer would know better than anybody when the system would be ready for operation and final tests.

He added that there have probably been some communication problems concerning the dates.

In any case, Glass said that he was "thrilled" with the way the entire construction of the plant was going.

Bid for $472,000, the work will have been done for exactly that amount, give or take a few dollars, he said. "It's a very rare thing to be exactly the same. It's evidence of fair bids and costs by the contractor and good engineering."

The original engineer's estimate had been $440,000 for construction of the treatment plant and pumping station, but the $32,000 increase reflected a general increase in prices, both equipment and labor.

But he stressed the timing of the job. "How many jobs have you heard of running months and months over" the original completion date?

Since the original date was January 3, Glass said he was "pleased" with the progress of the contractor and the operation of the entire system.

Parents Win Small Victory For Kids; Vow More Action

By Phyllis Trump

More than 30 members of the Strawbridge Community Association--the largest turnout the association has had--came out in snowy weather last week to hear that they have won one small victory in their fight to get safe access to school for their children.

But that "victory"--the reduction of the posted speed limit on Route 32 from 50 to 40 miles per hour--failed to satisfy the group, which threatened a letter writing campaign and other action until adequate safety measures are initiated.

Meeting in the Eldersburg Community Center, the group also was told that the developer of Strawbridge Estates, John McGinnis, has deeded to the county a strip of property parallel to Route 32 for a 250-foot walkway for children walking to the Freedom elementary school (some to attend that school, others to meet and board buses for other local schools).

But the parents noted that the children still must walk on the narrow shoulder of the road because the walkway has not yet been cleared or paved by the county.

Ernest DiPalo, president of the association, asked for suggestions at the meeting, and one man wondered if the price of a flashing speed sign which was holding up action. The association had inquired and found the cost of a "flasher" to be $289.

DiPalo replied that he thought the School Board could pay for such a sign, but that they were "hung up on procedure."

DiPalo said he believed in cutting through bureaucratic red tape to get a speedy solution to the safety problem. He drew response from most in the audience when he spoke of detecting insincerity in the attitude of most of the officials contacted.

The group's president questioned whether these officials honestly cared about the problem and whether they realized they were endangering the lives of the school children.

DiPalo said the "realissue," the "safety of children," was the "furthest things from their (the officials) minds."

The group was told that State Sen. Goodloe E. Byron (D., Carroll-Frederick), after visiting the community and judging the conditions, appeared to want to help solve the problem. The group was told that the Senator said he thought the flashing speed sign would be installed within 6 months.

A similar case in the Silver Run area of the county was cited. In that case, the association membership was told, Scott S. Bair, Jr., county commissioner, helped a school get flashing lights installed. DiPalo commented that perhaps the group should find someone who had influence with Bair to help in this situation.

Suggestions included one by Paul Nicholas for a letter writing campaign in which a different member of the association would send a letter to one official (or perhaps, copies to several officials) every day for a number of days. The idea was that the daily repetition over a different signature daily might hasten action.

Bill Merritt proposed that the association write to various local service organizations and also attend their meetings to make a plea for aid. DiPalo replied that these ideas were excellent and that two local groups--the Freedom District Elementary School P.T.A. and

Snow Halts Road Work In Mt. Airy

Work on the new Mt. Airy by-pass has been halted because of weather conditions with about 5-10 per cent of the work already completed, a State Roads Commission official said this week.

William Jabine, II, chief of the Bureau of Highway Information, said that the work has been halted because of frozen ground, which prevents any earth-moving operations.

"It's a pretty normal thing. They can't work in the winter. They could do a little work, such as clearing and removing brush, but it's pretty tough."

The road, which is called Relocated Route 27 in strict government-ese, will be 2.65 miles long when actually completed. The work is being done by the M. J. Grove Lime Company, from Lime Kiln, near Frederick, at a bid cost of $983,170.75.

The work is scheduled for completion sometime in early 1971, calling for approximately 300 working days. The recent shut-down was anticipated in this estimate from the Roads Commission.

At this point, the construction has proceeded south from a spot just north of Doreytown, about 1/2 mile north of Mt. Airy on the old Route 27.

The work began on November 17, and only preliminary gracing has been done so far.

The route for the new road is an eastern swing around Mt. Airy, beginning just north of Doreytown, crossing Watersville road and Twin Arch road almost exactly at the town's incorporated limits, before connecting with State Route 144 about 1/2 mile east of the present intersection of routes 27 and 144.

The by-pass will be two lanes, a preliminary step before the creation ultimately of a dual-lane highway.

There has been some difficulty over the exact location of the route, for it is to go through the Volunteer Fire Department's Fair Grounds, which have had condemnation proceedings started against it.

PRESENTS CHECK--Mrs. Hilda Haugh, president of the Ladies Auxiliary to the Winfield and Community Volunteer Fire Department, presents a check in the amount of $2,000 to the fire department. Accepting the check is the department president, Ed Will.

Panelists representing each point of view are Paul H. Smith, William Heinekamp and Walter V. Bennett.

A WESTMINSTER fireman takes his turn on 100-foot aerial ladder in fight against sewing factory-theater blaze.

ICY WORK is evident in this view of helmets of these two firemen.

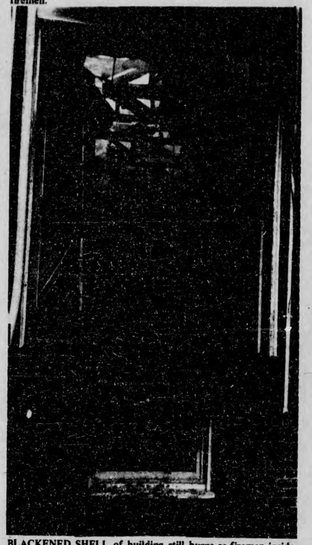

WESTMINSTER FIREMEN Larry White and Carlton Trite use a hose on fire as cold turns spray on helmets to ice.

A Cold, Icy Battle With 4-Alarmer

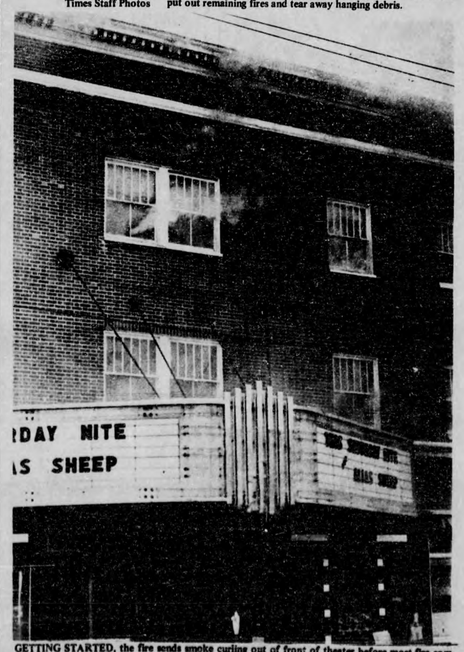

At first the 18-degree temperatures were forgotten in the excitement and the job at hand. Firemen rushed to rescue a family of six, hooked up hoses, began to battle a blaze that already had gotten off to a rouzing start. As the hours wore on, even as the fire got hotter, the men got colder, icicles forming on their helmets and coats. The coffee brought by volunteer Ladies Auxiliary members helped and containing the fire before it reached adjacent store and apartment buildings had its warming effect.

It Was A Spectator's Fire

For the spectators, it was like a ballgame on a cold day. They could stand back and watch trained firefighters battle the fire and, despite the damage and the sorrow, few who were there would have missed it. While they watched from the front, firemen in the back of the theater worked at stopping what they feared would be a collapsed wall. It never came.

The employees basketball team of Springfield avenged an earlier defeat at the hands of the Carroll Park team, by beating them, 81-79. Carroll Park won the first game of the series, 82-80. The game was played at the Sykesville Middle School.

A blistering second-half attack by the Springfield team was too much for the visitors, who suffered only its second defeat of the season, as Alan Overholt made two clutch foul shots, near the end of the game, to ice the victory.

The Springfield team was led in scoring by Terry Perkins, with 32 points, and John Mummert, with 15 points.

the Eldersburg Improvement Association--had already endorsed the efforts of the Strawbridge group.

Members of the association have written letters, made telephone calls and members have personally appeared before various officials to plead for some action. One of their goals is to get school buses to come into the Strawbridge development.

The group was told at its meeting that Leo J. Kuhn, director of school transportation for the county school system, maintains that buses cannot negotiate turns in the circles of the development and that Johnsville road (a suggested route) in its present condition, is not practical as a bus route.

In other matters at the meeting, the group touched on the legal incorporation of the Strawbridge Community Association, obtaining a parcel of land for future community recreational facilities, telephone rates, future water service to the development, a change in community garbage and trash collections and the removal of old barns which may cause rat problems, among other things.

Firm Chooses Columbia

William T. Whelan, vice president and general manager for ITT Electro-Physics Laboratories, Inc., has announced that the company will build its U. S. headquarters in Columbia.

A subsidiary of International Telephone and Telegraph Corporation, the new plant will occupy a 90,000 square-foot-building on 15.6 acres of land in the Oakland Ridge Industrial Center, east of route 29.

The company is involved in radio propagation research and development, research on the physics of the ionosphere for various government agencies, and the development of advanced radar and communication systems in support of these studies.

It will employ some 300 persons, half of whom have graduate degrees in the physical sciences.

Construction will begin in March, with the occupancy date slated for November, 1970.

Donohoe Construction Company, Inc., of Washington, D.C., will build the one-and one-half-story building which was designed by Eugene A. Delmar of Silver Spring.

ITT Electro-Physics Laboratories, Inc., is the 28th industry to locate in the new city, which is being developed by the Rouse Company in partnership with Connecticut General Life Insurance Company.

Other industries in Columbia include: Bendix, Merck Sharp & Dohme, Head Ski and Sports Wear, Ametek's US Gauge Division, Hittman Associates, Klinger Development Yarns, Japan Foods, Buff-Henley Paper, Eastern Products, Dyad Systems, Ejtay Corporation, Manst Research Corporation, McCullough Ceramics, Monumental Security Storage, Automatic Temperature Control, Optic Science Corporation and many others. New Tax Form Combines Old To Ease Problems

The new, one-page Form 1040 mailed to Maryland and District of Columbia taxpayers replaces both the card Form 1040A and the Form 1040 used last year, Irving Machiz, District Director of Internal Revenue, has announced.

The new form combines the simplicity of the 1040A with the tax saving features of the 1040.

Machiz said every taxpayer can now claim deductions or credits which could not be claimed by the 1040A filer.

The new one-page form is essentially the same as the 1040A but has a few added lines to allow for special tax situations.

Nearly half the taxpayers can file their 1969 Federal income tax return by using just the new, one-page form, the IRS estimates. Another 22 million taxpayers will need to attach only one schedule to the form.

Separate schedules will be needed to itemize deductions, list dividends and interest if either is over $100, capital gains, annuities and partnership income, and to claim the retirement income credit.

Machiz said copies of the schedules were included in tax packages for the taxpayer's convenience. Anyone not required to fill out a particular schedule should disregard it.

The package includes a worksheet, Schedule T, to be used in computing the tax. This schedule, Machiz said, will not have to be sent in with the tax return unless the taxpayer pays self-employment tax, claims a special tax credit on retirement income, investment or foreign taxes, or owes tax from recomputing prior-year investment credit.

Extra copies of the forms and instructions are available at many banks and post offices as well as IRS offices.

Machiz pointed out that the form taxpayers receive in the mail has a pre-addressed label that identifies the taxpayer by name, address, and Social Security number as they appear on IRS records. To avoid processing delays, the taxpayer should put the label on the form he files, including one prepared for him by a tax adviser or service.

Taxpayers should make corrections directly on the label, he said. It has been made so that it lifts off easily but sticks tightly when placed on another form.

Fine Tuning

(Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting)

For the duration of the strike against the major Baltimore newspapers, Channel 67 is carrying a late evening news special at 11 p.m., seven days a week.

Titled Operation Information, the program is staffed by a news team of reporters from the struck dailies who will continue to cover their regular news beats at City Hall, in Annapolis, in the counties, the Port, the courts and the local cultural scene. On the Sunday night edition, State Comptroller Louis Goldstein is scheduled to read the comics which are unavailable to the reading public because of the strike.

Operation Inforation presents national, sports and weather information in headline form and concentrates on in-depth coverage and analysis of the day's big local stories. The reporters covering the day's major news stories gather each evening in the Owings Mills studios of Channel 67 under the direction of WMPB's executive producer for public affairs, Thomas Gillette. The reporter who has covered a key story reports on his event, then is quizzed in detail by host Gillette and by his colleagues.

The result is a program that is particularly strong in analysis of the political trends and on evaluation of the impact of both Federal and State governmental action on the local scene.

A miniature temporary newsroom has been established at the Owings Mills broadcasting facility of the Maryland Center for Public Broadcasting. AUPI wirephoto machine, originally leased for Newslab, the current events program for junior high school students broadcast each week by Channel 67, has been pressed into double duty to provide news picture coverage of national events.

Channel 67 is presenting Operation Information as a public service during the newspaper strike. The station will return to its normal schedule of programs when the workers at the metropolitan papers go back to work.

The Maryland Center was able to move quickly to provide this important news coverage because of the funds made available to it through its members, each of whom contributes $10.00 to help to expand local programming. The Center also is actively seeking support from other individuals and from business organizations to sustain the special news broadcasts for the duration of the strike.

In covering local news during a newspaper strike, Channel 67 is following the lead of other public television stations throughout the country. KQED in San Francisco developed its highly regarded and foundation sponsored show Newsroom in response to a newspaper strike in the Bay area several years ago. And it was a newspaper strike in the 1930's that led the late Mayor Florello La Guardia of New York to read the comics to the public over the radio.

Joseph Stalin's real name was Iosif Vissarionovich Dzhugashvili.

CHURCH ROUNDUP

The Rev. Dr. John Baxter Howes will preach a series of five sermons beginning this Sunday evening, January 18, 7:30 p.m. at Messiah United Methodist in Taneytown on the general theme, "We are Fellow Workers for God."

Dr. Howes is Professor of Rural Church, Wesley Theological Seminary, Washington, D.C. He is a native Kentuckian and received his education at Union College in Kentucky, Boston University, and the University of Maryland. He received the Doctor of Divinity degree from Union College in 1952 and from Lycoming College in 1966.

He has served as a rural pastor and missionary and was for several years director of rural work for the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist.

For eight years he was editor of the Methodist Rural Fellowship Bulletin and has long been a leader in the rural church movement in America. He was awarded a Life Membership in the Methodist Rural Fellowship in 1963. He holds membership in the Rural Sociological Society and in the Association of Seminary Professors in the Practical Fields.

The demand for his services as a speaker throughout the county stems from his grasp of rural problems and from his awareness of the needs of small town and country churches in this day of Christian activism, a church announcement said.

In addition to his work of teaching, Dr. Howes is director of Placement and Field Work and of Student Aid for the Seminary, and is also the director of the Course of Study School for Lay Preachers.

The Taneytown Ministerium said it welcomed him into the community and invited people in the community to attend each evening at 7:30 p.m. at the following Taneytown Churches:

Sunday evening: Messiah United Methodist Church;

Monday evening: Taneytown Presbyterian Church;

Tuesday evening: Grace United Church of Christ;

Wednesday evening: St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church;

'Pot' Unpredictable, Call Made For Research

More intensive and long-range research on the dangerous effects of the use of marijuana has been called for by Dr. Neil Solomon, Maryland's secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Dr. Solomon stated, "For some time I have maintained that all of the facts dealing with the harmful effects of marijuana are not yet in. We need an additional five years of research to determine both the extent of these effects and to what dangers continual use can ultimately lead."

In a blunt warning Dr. Solomon said, "However, to say outright, at this point, that the drug is only psychologically habituating and that there are no serious side effects is wrong."

He said of marijuana and its users, "It's an unpredictable drug, used by unpredictable people, which brings about unpredictable reactions."

The secretary said that he has discovered that "more and more frequently" young people are using marijuana and abusing it to the extent that in some instances hospitalization is required.

He said that smoking of marijuana can produce any number of immediate mental and physical effects which become progressively stronger to the chronic user.

In support of his views, the State health chief pointed to the 1965 report on Drug Dependence for the World Health Organization which stated in part:

"Among the more prominent subjective effects of cannabis (marijuana) ... are: hilarity... carelessness; loquacious euphoria ... distortion of sensation and perception...impairment of judgment and memory; distortion of emotional responsiveness; irritability; and confusion.

"Other effects, which appear after repeated administration... include: lowering of the sensory threshold, especially for optical and acoustical stimuli ... illusions, and delusions that predispose to anti-social behavior; anxiety, and aggressiveness as a possible result of various intellectual and sensory derangements; and sleep disturbances."

Dr. Solomon added that the effects on the brain pose the greatest problem since the user may become psychotic and quoted in part from two recent health studies which said:

"It has long been known that marijuana and hashish can cause psychotic reactions, but usually such reactions are ascribed to individual idiosyncrasies rather than being usual or common reactions to the drug.

"The data in these experiments, however, definitely indicate that the effects of ... marijuana are dependent on dosage and that sufficiently high doses can cause psychotic reactions in almost any individual.

"Psychotic reaction, after smoking marijuana under the usual conditions in the United States appear to be rare but the low incidence of such psychotic breaks may reflect nothing more than the low tetrahydrocannabinol content (potency) of most of the marijuana available in the United States."

The other study said: "Excessive indulgence in cannabis is apt to produce in healthy individuals and more so in susceptible individuals, mental confusion which may lead to delusions with restlessness and disordered movements. Intellectual impairment as well as disorientation may show itself in various ways."

"Actually, a sufficient dose of marijuana brings on a state of temporary insanity. If a user is extremely sensitive to it, even a small dose of the drug can cause this reaction, and actions become totally unpredictable," said Dr. Solomon.

"Habitual use leads to increased doses and an even greater psychological dependence," he added.

Dr. Solomon also quoted Dr. David P. Ausubel, author of the book "Drug Addiction", who said, "chronic marijuana users will go to great lengths to make certain they will not be without the drug."

Depravation may lead to "anxiety, restlessness, irritability, or even a state of depression with suicidal fantasies, sometimes self-mutilating actions, or actual suicidal attempts."

'Quiz-A-Rama' Scheduled By YFC Teens

A Saturday night "quiz-a-rama," opening the second half of the 1970 churchleague "Olympic Quiz" season, has been scheduled by Youth for Christ for the metropolitan area January 17, 7 to 10 p.m. Host church will be the Shelbourne Baptist Church, off Wilkens Ave., in the Arbutus section of Baltimore. The public is cordially invited.

January 17 will also mark the kickoff for the Adult Seminar on Teen Dynamics. The "kickoff" will take the form of a sandwich buffet at 6:30 p.m. in the social hall of the Babcock Presbyterian Church, 8240 Loch Raven blvd., just south of the Beltway, Loch Raven exit. All church leaders, ministers, and interested individuals in the Greater Baltimore and metropolitan area are invited. Kickoff speaker will be Earl W. Schultz, Jr., Eastern Area Vice President YFCI.

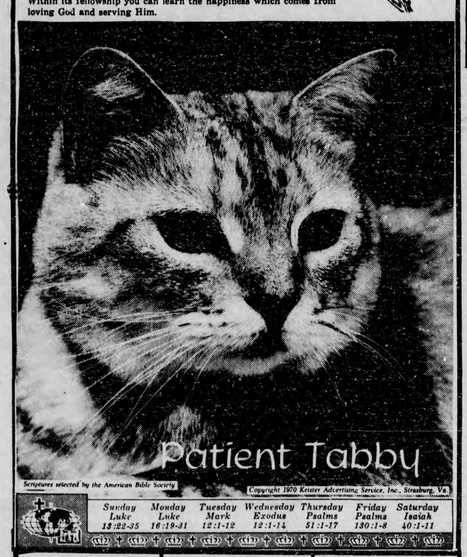

The January 17 Quiz-A-Rama will begin at 7 p.m. with all teams competing in the preliminary rounds of official quizzing. For the championship rounds, everyone will be brought together into the educational auditorium.

Swaying on a limb outside my kitchen, a bird flapped his sleek black wings and curved his throat in a burst of pure beauty.

"Watch out!" I wanted to cry. For over by the woodpile Tabby crouched, carved in predatory silence. Stone-like she stared, as the bird warbled, and even after the songster flashed off in a streak, she sat impassively.

How like our Tabby we humans sometimes are. Caught in the frenzy of making a living, stalemated with problems, we look indifferently at our world. Forgetting that God reveals Himself in simple ways, we overlook the laughter of a child, the smile of a stranger, and the flaming colors of our landscape.

Your church can show you how to find joy in life again. Within its fellowship you can learn the happiness which comes from loving God and serving Him.

Every wife deserves all the power she can get

Four out of five area homes don't have adequate wiring to run all of today's labor-saving appliances.
To bring the power into your house and make use of it, you need HOUSEPOWER. HOUSEPOWER is the name for adequate house wiring.
Without it, light bulbs go dim. Fuses blow. You tend to put too many plugs into single wall outlets, over-loading the circuits. Appliances don't always work properly and wear out before their time. It's enough to wear you out, as well.
To get HOUSEPOWER all you usually need is a reasonably priced modification of your present wiring. Just call your electrical contractor or Baltimore Gas & Electric for a free survey and a firm estimate. Ask about our easy payment plan, too.
Call Baltimore Gas & Electric at 234-7157 before you blow a fuse.

Clovertop Fobes Sesame 50-10756, a Registered Holstein cow owned by Russell S. Wachter, Keymar, has been officially classified "Excellent" - the highest designation attainable in the type classification program of the Holstein-Friesian Association of America.

This highly select designation is applied only to animals scoring 90 or more of the 100 points representing theoretical perfection in body conformation. Of over 88,500 Registered Holsteins officially classified for type last year, only 1,365 were rated "Excellent".

This animal moved into the "Excellent" bracket at 90 points for the first time during a recent classification of the herd. Classifier was Ronald Long, Miamisburg, Ohio, staff member of the national Holstein organization. Animals scored "Excellent" in previous programs are not included in this listing.

The Classification program, in continuous operation since 1929, provides a universally - recognized method of comparing the conformation of living animals with that of the True-Type Holstein cow or bull. Participation is currently at an all-time high level.

Town Gets 133 Acre Annex Bid

Taneytown councilman Elsworth Fesser has asked the town council to annex 133.8 acres of his land known locally as the old fairgrounds so that he can get water and sewer lines extended to the property.

Fesser said he plans on developing the tract and the town will not extend its sewer and water line outside the town limits.

The councilman said the area now stands dormant with only a few acres being farmed.

Part of the area, a small lot, has been purchased by the Humble Oil company for a service station site, he said.

The ground is divided for commercial, industrial and residential development, he said.

Fesser said that there is one house built on the land. He said an industry, which he declined to name, has an option for 20 acres of the industrial land. He added that he can sell that parcel before the annexation takes place.

The councilman said he did not anticipate any difficulty in getting the ground annexed.

He added that he had the annexation proposal drawn up in September but did not submit it until January 5 because he had some work to do on the property before it could be annexed.

Fesser said he was sure the land would be annexed at the March 2 council meeting. At that time the interested citizens were invited to attend a public meeting on the annexation. The town council tentatively accepted the annexation petition at the January 5 meeting subject to review and approval by city attorney Stanford Hoff.

Fesser said he plans to sell the commercial and industrial land but will develop the residential section himself. He added that he has not decided whether he will build apartments, houses or a combination of both.

He said that the industrial building could begin early in the spring.

Local Student Enters Contest

Future Politician Looks At Politics Generation Gap

Tom Stambaugh

Tom Stambaugh, a 17-year-old resident of Union Bridge, plans to go to Washington, D. C. to hold political office someday.

Tom, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth E. Stambaugh of Bark Hill road, said that he feels that his experiences in school politics and speech-making helps him learn "small things on a small scale." He added that national political life would be "about 10 times more complicated."

A senior at Francis Scott Key High School, Tom was the recent winner of a speech contest sponsored by the Veterans of Foreign War. He won the district 7 finals and went on to the State finals in Baltimore, Sunday where he was defeated.

But he is not discouraged by recent defeat in the first contest he entered. He plans to enter three more contests this spring. "I didn't think it was that good. I was surprised I went that far," he said of the Voice Democracy speech contest.

Now that he has made his debut as a speech-maker he plans to go on to two national contests. He said that with both the national contests, competition begins at the local level.

Tom said he wanted to enter the VFW contest because he wanted to "express myself more clearly."

"I became interested in public affairs and wanted to express myself. I saw other students participating in moritoriums and I wanted to make my thoughts known on a lone basis," he said.

The student said he became interested in public affairs about 5 years ago. "I became aware of what was happening in the world and wanted to be a part of it. I disagreed with a lot of things I heard and I wanted to make my opinion known," he said.

Tom plans to enter Frederick Community College in the fall and, if he is successful there, he hopes to go on to the University of Maryland, hopefully to study law.

He said that he feels study of the law will give him understanding of governmental processes and help in developing his ideas.

He said he thinks a potential legislator should have more than just a passing acquaintance with the law. "You have to know it almost completely," he said.

He added that many Congressmen and Senators have a law background.

Tom is active in the West Carroll Republican Club and says he will campaign for candidates in the up-coming Congressional and state elections.

But unlike some strict followers of the party line, Tom is not necessarily favoring every Republican candidate that

Oh, this weather. Snow and more snow and it looks like we might be going to get more of it today. The roads are bad enough with out more of the same. It makes driving hazardous. I watch the cars as they make the turn here at the crossroads and believe me it is not funny. The snow banks can stop them on either side. But its not what we want its what we have to take isn't it?

This is Friday, January 9, 9:25 a.m. and a happy birthday to my brother J. T. Baker of Taneytown. We wish the same for all who have birthdays this month, also for those who are having wedding anniversarys.

With all the sickness and sorrows, lets try to manage a smile through it all.

The new client told the lawyer, "I'll give you a thousand dollars if you'll do all my worrying for the rest of my life."

"O.K. where's the thousand dollars?" asked the lawyer.

"That's your first worry," the client replied.

The truck driver was trying to get his truck out of a mudhole by digging around the back wheels. Another trucker called out sympathetically. "Stuck in the mud?"

The angry truck driver answered, "No, my truck just died, and I'm trying to bury it."

I'm Not Alone

When I walk down a lonely road
Feeling sad and forlorn
I see God's beauty all around
I know I'm not alone.
Whenever I feel discouraged
As if I can't go on
There's a helping hand to guide me
I know I'm not alone
Whenever I go to church
And I am called upon
To do something for my Jesus
I know I'm not alone.

A WESTMINSTER fireman takes his turn on 100-foot aerial ladder in fight against sewing factory-theater blaze.

ICY WORK is evident in this view of helmets of these two firemen.

WESTMINSTER FIREMEN Larry White and Carlton Trite use a hose on fire as cold turns spray on helmets to ice.

A Cold, Icy Battle With 4-Alarmer

At first the 18-degree temperatures were forgotten in the excitement and the job at hand. Firemen rushed to rescue a family of six, hooked up hoses, began to battle a blaze that already had gotten off to a rouzing start. As the hours wore on, even as the fire got hotter, the men got colder, icicles forming on their helmets and coats. The coffee brought by volunteer Ladies Auxiliary members helped and containing the fire before it reached adjacent store and apartment buildings had its warming effect.

HUNDREDS of spectators line the street in front of Carroll County Bank and Trust Company to watch the fire.

FIGHTING FIRE from Winter's Alley, these firemen all man high-pressure hose. Later they went inside with hose.

It Was A Spectator's Fire

For the spectators, it was like a ballgame on a cold day. They could stand back and watch trained firefighters battle the fire and, despite the damage and the sorrow, few who were there would have missed it. While they watched from the front, firemen in the back of the theater worked at stopping what they feared would be a collapsed wall. It never came.

Traditional optimism which usually marks year-end economic forecasts is conspicuous by its absence in the predictions being made about 1970. While not universally gloomy, most of the experts regard the short-term outlook as at least unpromising.

Inflation is the problem, of course. Prices rose almost 5.5 percent in 1969 and the sad news for housewives and everybody else is that the price trend is still on an upward course. Consumer prices are expected to climb another 4 percent in 1970.

The word "recession" keeps cropping up in the new year forecasts. Some economists flatly predict a 1970 recession, others say the odds are 50-50, and almost all admit there is at least a possibility of recession. However, there is no precise definition of the word, which means different things to different people.

A substantial minority of the public is worried about a recession. A respected national survey taken quarterly by the University of Michigan reported in December that 40 percent of consumers interviewed during the fall believe a recession is likely. One year earlier only 26 percent answered "yes" to the same question.

In coming weeks, several messages to Congress will give President Nixon's assessment of the economic outlook. He is sure to warn of inflation and to urge restraint in several directions. He has already done so repeatedly, particularly in the area of government spending.

Last spring the President proposed a $4 billion cut in the Federal budget. When Congressional spending seemed headed skyward during the summer, he directed a further cut of $3.5 billion, mostly in the Defense budget. In October, he made a fireside chat by radio about the rising cost of living.

In December, Nixon got tough with Congress, threatened several vetoes and a special session and asked the legislators to join in "a continuing display of determination to hold down spending and maintain revenue so as to contain the cost of living, no matter what the cost in political popularity."

Congress did pare down some of its more extreme spending plans, although still exceeding what the President regards as a prudent level. However, economy is more often talked than voted in the 91st Congress. And since 1970 is an election year when politicians love to bestow goodies on the voters, the outlook is for more of the same.

In his October speech, President Nixon said he was asking the American People "to take some bitter medicine." He outlined the steps he was taking to reverse a five-year trend of rising prices and predicted "we are going to experience some slowing pains."

The White House has had some difficulty in trying to persuade the public and business leaders that the President is in dead earnest in his fight against inflation. As long as decision-makers continue to bet on more inflation, their actions continue to bid up prices and living costs.

The public can help fight HCL by refusing to pay excessive prices by postponing buying decisions. There is some evidence that many people are doing just that today. Automobile sales are down, for example, and Detroit planners have scaled down their production plans.

If the public does cooperate by using restraint, the government can make good its promise to avoid the economic controls which are always suggested when inflation gets out of hand. Those who remember the wage and price controls of World War II do not want them to be reimposed, and the President has taken a firm stand against that course.

Seventy million American families will be asked this year to cooperate with their government by participating in the 19th Decennial Census, the official nose-count of the population of the U.S.A.

Census Day will arrive on April 1, 1970, but the public will see and hear a great deal on the subject before that date. Because most people will not see a census-taker this year, the need for voluntary public cooperation is greater than ever this year. A major educational campaign to motivate people to do their part will be launched soon.

The Post Office will be a partner of the Bureau of the Census this year as never before. Each family will receive its questionnaire by mail late in March and will be asked to fill it out on April 1. Most heads of households will be expected to return their form in a postage-free envelope.

The two-way mail procedure will be followed in the major metropolitan areas. In the smaller cities and towns and in rural areas, a one-way mail system will be used. People will get their questionnaire by mail, fill it out on April 1, but hold the forms until a census-taker makes a personal visit.

Four out of five families will receive only the basic form, posing 20 questions. Seven relate to individual members of the household, and 13 to the home. The fifth family will get a more detailed questionnaire, seeking additional information both about the people and the dwelling.

The answer to the question who reads the completed forms is FOSDIC. This is an electronic device developed by the Census Bureau to scan microfilm copies of the returns and transiate the data into code on magnetic computer tape. FOSDIC is an acronym for Film Optical Sensing Device for Input to Computers.

FOSDIC is very clever but has its limitations. It can read only little black dots. It cannot read writing, printing, check marks, or X's. Therefore answers must be supplied by filling in the proper circle. A black lead pencil is recommended for this purpose, so that errors can be erased and corrected.

It will save the taxpayers money if they will cooperate with FOSDIC. A properly completed form will be ready for machine - reading, eliminating costly and time-consuming human labor to transfer data into machine-readable form. However, the computer cannot do everything and some manual work will be required.

This month, 393 temporary Census offices will be established throughout the country. The employees at these offices will review the returns received by mail for completeness and consistency. They will follow up on unacceptable returns, by telephone or personal visit. If no form is received from a particular address, the family residing there will be visited.

Theme of the 1970 Census is: "We Can't Know Where We're Going If We Don't Know Where We Are." That message will be widely publicized in a public service campaign contributed by the Advertising Council. There will be newspaper and magazine ads, TV films, car cards, etc.

The Census Bureau has been testing its mail procedures for 20 years, with good results. Public cooperation has ranged from 80 to over 90 percent. About two households in three return acceptable answers in two days. Therefore it is expected that the army of 200,000 census-takers needed in 1960 can be cut to 160,000 this year, most of whom will spend their time checking mail returns and making telephone calls where necessary.

The big problem in census-taking is with the uneducated segment of the population. The more schooling a person has had, the more likely he is to cooperate.

Dr. Howes is Professor of Rural Church, Wesley Theological Seminary, Washington, D.C. He is a native Kentuckian and received his education at Union College in Kentucky, Boston University, and the University of Maryland. He received the Doctor of Divinity degree from Union College in 1952 and from Lycoming College in 1966.

He has served as a rural pastor and missionary and was for several years director of rural work for the Central Pennsylvania Conference of the United Methodist.

For eight years he was editor of the Methodist Rural Fellowship Bulletin and has long been a leader in the rural church movement in America. He was awarded a Life Membership in the Methodist Rural Fellowship in 1963. He holds membership in the Rural Sociological Society and in the Association of Seminary Professors in the Practical Fields.

The demand for his services as a speaker throughout the county stems from his grasp of rural problems and from his awareness of the needs of small town and country churches in this day of Christian activism, a church announcement said.

In addition to his work of teaching, Dr. Howes is director of Placement and Field Work and of Student Aid for the Seminary, and is also the director of the Course of Study School for Lay Preachers.

The Taneytown Ministerium said it welcomed him into the community and invited people in the community to attend each evening at 7:30 p.m. at the following Taneytown Churches:

Sunday evening: Messiah United Methodist Church;

Monday evening: Taneytown Presbyterian Church;

Tuesday evening: Grace United Church of Christ;

Wednesday evening: St. Joseph Roman Catholic Church;

Thursday evening: Trinity Lutheran Church.

'Pot' Unpredictable, Call Made For Research

More intensive and long-range research on the dangerous effects of the use of marijuana has been called for by Dr. Neil Solomon, Maryland's secretary of Health and Mental Hygiene.

Dr. Solomon stated, "For some time I have maintained that all of the facts dealing with the harmful effects of marijuana are not yet in. We need an additional five years of research to determine both the extent of these effects and to what dangers continual use can ultimately lead."

In a blunt warning Dr. Solomon said, "However, to say outright, at this point, that the drug is only psychologically habituating and that there are no serious side effects is wrong."

He said of marijuana and its users, "It's an unpredictable drug, used by unpredictable people, which brings about unpredictable reactions."

The secretary said that he has discovered that "more and more frequently" young people are using marijuana and abusing it to the extent that in some instances hospitalization is required.

He said that smoking of marijuana can produce any number of immediate mental and physical effects which become progressively stronger to the chronic user.

In support of his views, the State health chief pointed to the 1965 Report on Drug Dependence for the World Health Organization which stated in part:

"Among the more prominent subjective effects of cannabis (marijuana) ... are: hilarity... carelessness; loquacious euphoria ... distortion of sensation and perception,...impairment of judgment and memory; distortion of emotional responsiveness; irritability; and confusion.

"Other effects, which appear after repeated administration... include: lowering of the sensory threshold, especially for optical and acoustical stimuli ... illusions, and delusions that predispose to anti-social behavior; anxiety, and aggressiveness as a possible result of various intellectual and sensory derangements; and sleep disturbances."

Dr. Solomon added that the effects on the brain pose the greatest problem since the user may become psychotic and quoted in part from two recent health studies which said:

"It has long been known that marijuana and hashish can cause psychotic reactions, but usually such reactions are ascribed to individual idiosyncrasies rather than being usual or common reactions to the drug.

"The data in these experiments, however, definitely indicate that the effects of ... marijuana are dependent on dosage and that sufficiently high doses can cause psychotic reactions in almost any individual.

"Psychotic reaction, after smoking marijuana under the usual conditions in the United States appear to be rare but the low incidence of such psychotic breaks may reflect nothing more than the low tetrahydrocannabinol content (potency) of most of the marijuana available in the United States."

The other study said: "Excessive indulgence in cannabis is apt to produce in healthy individuals and more so in susceptible individuals, mental confusion which may lead to delusions with restlessness and disordered movements. Intellectual impairment as well as disorientation may show itself in various ways."

"Actually, a sufficient dose of marijuana brings on a state of temporary insanity. If a user is extremely sensitive to it, even a small dose of the drug can cause this reaction, and actions become totally unpredictable," said Dr. Solomon.

"Habitual use leads to increased doses and an even greater psychological dependence," he added.

Dr. Solomon also quoted Dr. David P. Ausubel, author of the book "Drug Addiction", who said, "chronic marijuana users will go to great lengths to make certain they will not be without the drug."

Depravation may lead to "anxiety, restlessness, irritability, or even a state of depression with suicidal fantasies, sometimes self-mutilating actions, or actual suicidal attempts."

'Quiz-A-Rama' Scheduled By YFC Teens

A Saturday night "quiz-a-rama," opening the second half of the 1970 churchleague "Olympic Quiz" season, has been scheduled by Youth for Christ for the metropolitan area January 17, 7 to 10 p.m. Host church will be the Shelbourne Baptist Church, off Wilkens Ave., in the Arbutus section of Baltimore. The public is cordially invited.

January 17 will also mark the kickoff for the Adult Seminar on Teen Dynamics. The "kickoff" will take the form of a sandwich buffet at 6:30 p.m. in the social hall of the Babcock Presbyterian Church, 8240 Loch Raven blvd., just south of the Beltway, Loch Raven exit. All church leaders, ministers, and interested individuals in the Greater Baltimore and metropolitan area are invited. Kickoff speaker will be Earl W. Schultz, Jr., Eastern Area Vice President YFCI.

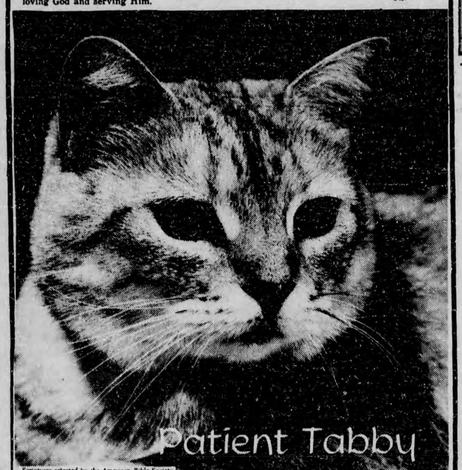

The January 17 Quiz-A-Rama will begin at 7 p.m. with all teams competing in the preliminary rounds of official quizzing. For the championship rounds, everyone will be brought together into the educational auditorium.

Swaying on a limb outside my kitchen, a bird flapped his sleek black wings and curved his throat in a burst of pure beauty.

"Watch out!" I wanted to cry. For over by the woodpile Tabby crouched, carved in predatory silence. Stone-like she stared, as the bird warbled, and even after the songster flashed off in a streak, she sat impassively.

How like our Tabby we humans sometimes are. Caught in the frenzy of making a living, stalemated with problems, we look indifferently at our world. Forgetting that God reveals Himself in simple ways, we overlook the laughter of a child, the smile of a stranger, and the flaming colors of our landscape.

Your church can show you how to find joy in life again. Within its fellowship you can learn the happiness which comes from loving God and serving Him.

Every wife deserves all the power she can get

Four out of five area homes don't have adequate wiring to run all of today's labor-saving appliances.
To bring the power into your house and make use of it, you need HOUSEPOWER. HOUSEPOWER is the name for adequate house wiring.
Without it, light bulbs go dim. Fuses blow. You tend to put too many plugs into single wall outlets, over-loading the circuits. Appliances don't always work properly and wear out before their time. It's enough to wear you out, as well.
To get HOUSEPOWER all you usually need is a reasonably priced modification of your present wiring. Just call your electrical contractor or Baltimore Gas & Electric for a free survey and a firm estimate. Ask about our easy payment plan, too.
Call Baltimore Gas & Electric at 234-7157 before you blow a fuse.
